GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY DEPARTMENT.

The following report of the Select Committee on the Bill further to amend the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923, for certain purposes was presented to the Legislative Assembly on the 26th February, 1925—

We, the undersigned members of the Select Committee to which the Bill further to amend the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923, for certain purposes, was referred, have considered Paper No. 2-V. The Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

Clause 2.—This clause has been partly omitted on the ground that the proposed definition, as applied to the railway accidents referred to in sub-clause (a) of clause (a) of section 2 (D) of the Act, will not necessarily include persons employed upon new lines under construction and upon railways not used for the carriage of passengers and goods and as are referred to in sub-section (2) of section 213 of the Indian Railways Act, 1925, and also on the further ground that it would include persons employed by motor cars otherwise than by way of general labour at an engine standing (over hundred rupees.

(H)

We think we have met this criticism by the inclusion of this clause and the insertion of a new clause in Schedule II of the Act all the entries in which schedule are subject to the qualification as regards manual labour and limit of wages referred to above. The new clause which we propose will be placed in clause 3 of the Bill (new clause 7). The remaining clauses of the Bill have been renumbered accordingly.

Clause 2 (new clause 2).—The amendment which we have made in this clause is of a purely drafting nature.

Clause 3 (new clause 3).—The method by which the Bill sought to deal with the case of a casual labourer or a workman who is injured after having been for less than a month in the service of an employer has been criticised both by employers and by representatives of workmen. On the one hand, it is pointed out that workmen of this class will, owing to inexperience, often be drawing low wages than other workmen performing similar tasks; on the other hand, it is feared that, in the absence of some perfect machinery for the determination of wages in such cases, disputes and disturbing might arise and that persons might be brought by employers upon other workmen to state the wages of the injured workman at a lower figure than that at which they had actually been paid. On the whole, we consider that the question requires further consideration, and we understand that it will be re-considered in connection with the more general provisions of the Act, the preliminary stages of which have already been undertaken. Our decision therefore sets aside clause (3) of sub-clause (7) of this clause of the Bill.

Clause 4 (new clause 4).—We think there is considerable force in some of the opinions received which are to the effect that the proposed new sub-section (1) of section 3 of the Act would prevent an employer from advancing money to the dependants of a deceased workman either for funeral expenses or for temporary maintenance. We understand that such advances are frequently made, and we are desirous of opinion that it would be in the interests of workmen that they should continue to be legal, at any rate up to a certain amount. We have accordingly made an exception in most the case which will allow an employer to advance not more than fifty pounds an account of funeral expenses, and not more than one hundred pounds to any one dependant of a deceased workman for maintenance. It will be observed that the advance for funeral expenses may be deducted by the employer from the amount which he has to deposit with the Commissioner, whilst in the case of an advance for maintenance the employer will be required to deposit the full sum and will be entitled to repayment to the extent only of the compensation awarded to the dependant. This will ensure a decision by the Commissioner of any dispute as to the amount actually advanced.

We have further decided to extend the provisions of the new sub-section (1) to the case of the payment of a lump sum to any woman worker, as we think that to deny women the female labourer is under a legal disability, and not only in a minor as defined in the Act. This decision involves the extension of the proposed new sub-section (2) under which the deposit of compensation payable to a woman or a person, other than a minor, under a legal disability was not compulsory but could be ordered, by the Commissioner at his discretion.

The insertion of the proposed new sub-section (3) involves a certain amount of re-constructing which we have carried out in the Bill attached to our report, and the decision to require advance involves a consequential additional amendment in sub-section (4) of section 5 of the Act.

We have also adopted a suggestion made by the Local Government of Bombay that provision should be made enabling the recovery of any amount which has been paid as compensation in any person through fraud or other improper means.

Clause (7 now clause 5).—As a corollary to the similar amendment which we have made in clause 5 (now clause 4) we have decided to extend the provision which is afforded by compulsory registration of agreements to the cases where compensation settled by agreement is payable to a woman or any person under a legal disability.

We have also considered the various suggestions made thus with the insertion of clause (7) of the previous sub-section (1) of section 22 of the Act, the Act no longer contains any provision requiring that a memorandum of agreement can be presented for registration by a workman. We agree that this is so, but we now agree that clause (1) of the previous section as the Act is at present framed makes no definite provision for this case. We have, however, reserved an assurance that the question of making such provision will be considered in connection with the general revision of the Act to which we have already alluded.

Clause 2 (now clause 7).—It has been pointed out that the new clause (p) which the Bill proposes to insert in Schedule II of the Act would appear to include members of the crew of a ship registered under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, and also the crew of a foreign ship. In view of the fact that members of registered ships as defined in the Act are already covered by clause (a) of the Schedule, we have made it clear that the clause does not include the master or crew of the ship.

It has also been pointed out that the clause as framed will include some dock labourers but not others. We agree that this appears illogical but we think it is not a point which we can attempt to meet until the matter has received full consideration from all interests affected.

The only other alteration which we have made, apart from the addition, to which we have already referred, of a clause to cover labour engaged by railway contractors, is a slight verbal alteration in the proposed amendment in clause (a) of Schedule II.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for certain purposes was presented to the Legislative Assembly on the 20th February 1929:—

We, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill further to amend the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for certain purposes was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers (Pages 21 to 71), noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us, annexed thereto.

The Committee met on the 1st and 2nd March 1928 and the 1st and 2nd February 1929. Our deliberations have resulted in considerable alterations of the details of the Bill although not, we think, in its general principles. These alterations we now propose to refer to them by direct pointing reference to more closely one of a purely drafting nature.

Clause 2.—We have omitted the words "and assess it as if it were unregistered" at the end. If the registration is essential, the law can only be assessed on an unregistered firm.

Clause 4.—This clause we have found to require very careful consideration, and we have expended a considerable amount of time in the discussion of it.

As regards sub-section (1) of the proposed new section 23A, we agree, in the first place, with those opinions which point out that there may be perfectly genuine firms of which one member only is competent to bind the firm by his act, while, on the other hand, we consider that the sub-section as drafted could easily be abused by an unwritten agreement or understanding under which a kind of partnership among such persons in all the persons could be rendered a practical reality and the actual power placed in the hands of one partner only. We further agree that this is very important, and as it is provided in the case of companies in the English Act, the real purpose of the sub-section should be clearly stated and its provisions confined to cases where a firm or association has been formed and is used really and principally in order that one or more of its partners may evade the incidence of income-tax. Finally, we have added an Explanation to make it clear that firms such as are common in India in which one man puts up the whole or the major portion of the capital and in the principal partner is possibly a dummy or other firms with working partners associated with him, are not necessarily to be deemed to have been formed for the purpose of evasion. We think that the sub-section as now drafted is a reasonable solution of the objections which have been taken to the original proposal.

As regards sub-section (2) of the proposed new section 23A, we are satisfied that the scheme contained in clauses (3), (4) and (5) of the sub-section as originally proposed would fail to achieve the desired object. These clauses would not in fact have limited the operation of the sub-section to private companies only because, as many of the objections have failed to observe, the conditions were to be alternative and not cumulative. On the other hand, it would have been perfectly easy for any person to form a public company having none of these attributes and yet actually under the control of a single person. As in the case of sub-section (1), we are also impressed with the importance of having the real purpose of the enactment clearly stated in the body of the sub-section. After extensive deliberations, therefore, we have adopted sub-section which follows fairly closely, with necessary modifications, clause 21 of the English Finance Act, 1912, as amended and amplified by section 21 (1) of the English Finance Act, 1920. The most important feature of the sub-section as now the Bill is perhaps the phrase that it is not to apply to a company which is a subsidiary company or in which the public is substantially interested, and for the purpose of fixing the meaning of the latter expression we have framed the view that the definition in the English Act is as satisfactory as it is possible in all the circumstances to devise.

We have further added to the new section 12A the new sections. Sub-section (2) provides that any firm, association or company may be given an opportunity of being heard before orders are passed under the section. Sub-section (3) provides in the case of a firm or association that the additional tax payable by a member may, in default of payment by him, be recovered from the firm or association, and in the case where the individual members of a company have become liable to additional tax in respect of undistributed profits, that the proportionate part of tax payable on such undistributed profits shall be recoverable only from the company. Sub-section (5) provides that where undistributed profits have been included in the total income of individual members of a company they shall not, if they are subsequently distributed, be taxable again in the hands of the individual.

Clause 5 of the Bill as amended (Clause 6 of the Bill as introduced).— We consider that the definite provision which the Bill is to make for the procedure in the matter of registration of firms would be more suitably inserted in the Income-tax Act as section 20A, rather than as section 12A. As regards the subject-matter of the new section we have considered very carefully the provisions originally made in sub-section (2) allowing an Income-tax Officer to refuse registration to any association of individuals when in his opinion such a firm. We think, in the first place, that such a provision is unnecessary in view of the provisions of sub-section (2) of the new section 12A, which gives power to the Income-tax authorities to treat the members of a firm as individuals, ignoring the constitution of the firm as such, and of the unlimited power under the Act as it now stands to refuse registration to a company which on the face of the deed of partnership is not a firm as defined in the Act. In addition to this we observe that there is undoubtedly a large body of opinion which holds that the sub-section would place in the hands of Income-tax Officers a power which, although it might not in actual practice be abused, is liable to be misused and thus to hamper and discourage the formation of perfectly genuine partnerships for business purposes. At the same time we realize that it should not be possible for persons to evade registration of an enterprise as a registered firm which is in fact nothing more than a non-resident trust, and we think the objection view can be satisfactorily met by making provision for the restriction of an application for registration not by imposing by an amendment of section 62 of the Act a penalty upon any one who makes a false declaration. This results in a small amendment in sub-section (7) of the new section 28A and of section 62 of the Act; and the addition of sub-section (3) of the new section.

Clause 6 (Clause 7 of the Bill as introduced).— We have agreed in this clause with one small drafting amendment.

Clause 7.— This clause is new. Clause 11 of the Bill as introduced provided a reference to the High Court on questions of fact as well as of law in cases where the income-tax authorities proceed against firms, associations and companies under the new section 21A. Several of the High Courts have taken strong objection to this proposal. They point out that not only would this involve a great extension in the work of High Courts but also a new principle would be introduced into the law relating to the jurisdiction of High Courts by making it the subject of facts, a principle which might have serious repercussions in other branches of law. We are agreed that these objections are fatal to the original proposal and consider that the only possible alternative is to provide, as we do in this clause, for the reference of cases of this nature to Boards of Reference. The actual provisions governing the constitution and procedure of these Boards we propose to leave to rules, but as the matter is of great importance to the commercial community we desire to outline briefly the scheme in which we think they should be constituted. We may here observe that the rules will, as in the case of other rules made under the Act, be made after previous publication. The outline of our proposals is as follows:—

(1) The members of each Board of Reference should be chosen from an ad-hoc panel constituted and constituted by the Central Board of Revenue. It will be the duty of the Central Board of Revenue to appoint a number of persons from each province who are willing to serve on Boards of Reference and to appoint such number from each province as are proportionate to the size and commercial importance of the province.

(2) On receipt of an application by the Commissioner of Revenue for the reference of a case to a Board of Reference he will appoint a Board consisting of three, four or five members according to the magnitude of the case out of the names involved. He should be directed to send written opinions likely to show him either for or against the applicant and should carefully consider the role of an applicant being compelled to disclose the details of his business to a trade rival. Apart from this, although there will not be separate panels for each province, the Commissioners would normally choose a panel from those residing in the neighbourhood so as to avoid inconvenience and loss of time in travelling.

(3) The names selected by the Commissioner should be communicated to the applicant within one week, and if the applicant should then, he given a reasonable time, say 15 days, within which he may object, without giving reasons, to the inclusion of any name and as the case time may run out time then five members of the panel in whom he will not object. The Commissioner will then proceed to substitute a fresh name for any name in which objection has been taken, but he should not be bound by the list of names submitted by the applicant. If he takes a name from the applicant's list as objection to that name should be allowed. As regards any other names, the applicant should be allowed one more opportunity to raise objections. Thereafter, that is to say, in the case where the applicant has twice objected to a panel as proposed to be constituted by the Commissioner, the final composition of the Board should be settled by the Central Board of Revenue.

(4) The date and place of meeting of a Board should be fixed by the Commissioner of Revenue after consulting the members.

(5) The ex-officio should elect a Chairman from among the members of the Board and thereafter the procedure will be directed and controlled by him.

(6) The decision of a Board should be the decision of the majority of members present and signing the same. All members who are present should sign but any member should have the right to record a dissenting opinion. In the case of an equality of votes the Chairman should have a casting vote and any decision which is signed by not less than half of the members should be deemed to be a valid decision. Provided these conditions are fulfilled, the absence of a member or his failure to sign the decision should not invalidate the proceedings.

(7) The scales of remuneration and allowances for members of Boards of Reference should be provided for in the rules.

Decisions of Boards of Reference are made final, subject to a reference (in which we provide in clause 12) to the High Court on points of law.

The only other point to which special reference is made is the provision in sub-section (2) of the proposed new section 25A, which makes the applicant to endeavour to obtain a decision in his favour from the Chairman after being under his powers of reference and thus obviates the delay and possible intervention of a reference to a Board.

Clause 6.—This clause is, as already noticed, consequential in part upon the amendment which we have made in sub-section (3) of the proposed new section 25A, and also contains a penalty for false verification of an appeal to a Board of Reference. (See sub-section (2) of new section 25A.)

Clause 20.—We have already explained this clause in our remarks upon clause 7.

3. As mentioned in the opening part of our Report, the Bill has not been essentially altered in principle, but the radical alterations in detail which we have made in clause 4 and the substitution of clause 4A relieve us of the necessity of making any further alterations in the Bill. We therefore, as required by sub-order (4) of Standing Order 41, record our opinion that the Bill has been so altered as to require republishing.
